ARMY SONGS

ALL MY LIFE

Tunes—Anything for Jesus, 206; Song Book, 447.
 Jesus, precious Saviour, Thou hast saved my soul, from sin's foul corruption made me fully whole;
 Every hour I'll serve Thee, what'er may befall,
 Fill in Heaven I crown Thee King and Lord of all.

Chorus

All my heart I give Thee,
 Day by day, come what may;
 All my life I give Thee,
 Dying men to save.

From the lowly manger I will follow Thee,
 In the desert and the strife near Thee I will be;
 Even the sufferings of the Cross I will gladly bear
 If with Thee in Heaven I a crown may wear.

THE HARVEST IS PASSING
 Tunes—The ash grove, 200; Oh, turn ye, 199; Song Book, 118.

Mark sinner! while God from on high doth entreat thee,
 And warnings with accents of mercy do blend;
 Give ear to His voice, lest in judgment He meet thee;
 The harvest is passing, the summer will end.

How oft of thy danger and guilt He hath told thee!
 How oft still the message of mercy doth send!
 Haste, haste, while He waits in His arms to enfold thee;
 The harvest is passing, the summer will end.

INSPIRE MY LIFE!

Tunes—Come, comrades, dear, 136; He lives, 138; Song Book, 361.
 Come, Jesus, Lord, with holy fire,
 Come, and my quickened heart inspire,
 Cleansed in Thy precious Blood;
 Now to my soul Thyself reveal,
 Thy mighty working let me feel,
 Since I am born of God.

My will be swallowed up in Thee,
 Light in Thy light still may I see,
 In Thine unclouded face:
 Called the full strength of trust to prove,
 Let all my quickened heart be love,
 My spotless life be praise.

COMRADES FAREWELL

Harvest Festival a Good Success

The Harvest Festival Effort was enthusiastically taken up by the comrades of the Woodstock (Ont.) Corps, and the result was that there was a very fine and tasteful display of fruit, etc., in the Citadel (says R.). Great credit is due to the Life-Saving Guards for their participation in the Effort.

A pleasing little ceremony that occurred on Sunday morning was the dedication to God and The Army of the infant daughter of Brother and Sister R. Maltby, by Adjutant Raven.

During the afternoon the Life-Saving Guard Songsters sang a harvest song.
 Sergeant-Major Evans, of the 111th (South Waterloo) Battalion, who was a Soldier of this Corps, gave a farewell address at night previous to his leaving for overseas service. Brother R. Maltby, who, with his wife and family, are being transferred to the Ingersoll Corps, also spoke. We shall miss these comrades; all having done good service in the Corps.

The Songsters rendered a Harvest selection, after which Adjutant Raven gave a very effective address. A varied musical programme was given by the Band and Life-Saving Guards on Monday night, following which was the sale of fruit, home-made baking, etc., while refreshments were also served. All of which realized a good sum. All the services were well attended, and were conducted by Adjutant Raven and Captain W. Jones. We are glad to report the smashing of our target.

Brigadier and Mrs. Bell, the Training College Staff, and the New Cadets at the Toronto Training College

AT THE TIME THE ABOVE PHOTOGRAPH WAS TAKEN, THERE WERE NINE MORE CADETS TO COME TO THE COLLEGE; A NUMBER OF OTHERS HAD BEEN APPOINTED TO CORPS FOR FIELD TRAINING, WITH THE RANK OF CADET-LIEUTENANTS—OVER EIGHTY IN ALL. SOME PARTICULARS CONCERNING THE CADETS WILL BE FOUND ON PAGE SIX; THE REPORT OF THEIR WELCOME ON PAGE NINE. THE TRAINING COLLEGE STAFF OCCUPIES THE FRONT ROW, AND (READING FROM LEFT TO RIGHT) THEIR NAMES ARE AS FOLLOWS: CAPTAIN HORWOOD, ADJUTANT MALONE, MRS. BRIGADIER BELL, BRIGADIER BELL, MAJOR DESBRISAY, ADJUTANT PATTERSON, CAPTAIN BETTS, AND LIEUTENANT FAIRHURST.

THE LORD'S rebuke to Saul at the month of the Prophet Samuel applies with much force to all who would be His loyal followers to-day. "Obedience," said He, "is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams." (1 Samuel 15:22) We may give time, strength, and money on behalf of humanity, but the real test of our loyalty to God will be along the lines of obedience.

It has been so from the beginning. The Bible provides both warning and encouragement on the matter; and none may claim exemption from this test.

Even angels fell through disobedience and have ever since been kept in "chains of darkness" (Peter 2:43). Instead of helping mankind out of sin, they, by disobedience, helped themselves into it. We cannot disobey God without cutting ourselves off from great privileges and opportunities, possibly from the Kingdom itself.

—Deacon Philip, because of his obedience, became the instrument of Divine Providence in sending the Ethiopian eunuch in the way of discipleship—and through him, probably introducing the Gospel into Africa.

Philip had proved himself faithful in the service of others, and was promoted to the greater honour of

Who Follows In Their Train

MEN OF THE BIBLE WHO OBEYED AND WERE BLESSED

preaching the Gospel at Samaria. Faithfulness in little always brings large opportunities. The test of Philip's loyalty came to him when a great revival was in progress. We are not told by what means the "Lord spoke to Philip," sending him to the road in which he would find the eunuch's chariot. We may be sure, however, that the call was something more than a guess, an impulse, otherwise he would scarcely have left such congenial surroundings for the "way was desert."

It was a lonesome journey over rocks and sands, and never a comrade at hand to cheer him. Never a bird to sing and never a tree to sing upon. Yet Philip "arose and went," because his love for God was real.

Obedience is the offspring of love, and love is the foundation of right-thinking and right-acting. Our actions when God says "Go" or "Stay" are always the measure of our love—our loyalty. Philip did not know what awaited him in that desert; it was enough that God sent him there.

—General Abraham

Abraham, when called to leave home and country, went out not knowing; he obeyed God and it was counted to him for righteousness. Abraham was very "rich"; he was a good manager, and he had shown his skill as a leader of men and as a general at the time that Lot and all the wealthy Sodomites and their possessions were taken captive by King Chedorlaomer and his associates. We read how promptly he armed 318 of his own servants, pursued the victors, and recovered the spoils.

But it was not for his skill as a general, nor for his generosity in dealing with the spoils, nor for his generosity on other occasions, that God loved Abraham and called him His friend.

It was his faith which manifested itself by his obedience which endeared him to the Almighty. Abraham stood the test which always comes sooner or later to all who would inherit the promises.

—Farmer Elisha

There was something very fine about the tales of Elisha, acted when the mantle of the prophet was placed upon him shoulders. He was quietly pursuing his ordinary life of labour; ploughing with two yoke of oxen.

Without any warning the rough prophet of the desert cast his mantle upon him. Elisha knew and recognized the call of God. He left his oxen, and, running after him, he made the modest request that he might first "kiss his father and mother."

He said no word about winding up his business or the disposal of his property. If the Lord wanted him he could leave that to his own devices. He returned, slew oxen, and sold the land, and he followed the prophet of the desert.

We know the sequel—how God honoured the fearless reckoning of Elisha upon himself by giving him a double portion of His Spirit. And we are not shut out from this double portion. God wants to repeat in those who, through faith and obedience, have held fast to the promises, quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, and shall have been, when I fight the armies of the aliens."

Offer desire him to do so. In many ways he proved himself a most useful fellow, encouraged as he was in all his efforts by those about him.

"I am praying for you, my son," said the mother.

"We are praying for you," said the Salvationists.

"It is about time I began to pray for myself," soliloquized the prodigal.

"For many months he held out, nor was he ostracized by the Salvationists because he did not comply at once with the gentle urgings of the Officer in charge.

"One day the Territorial Commissioner held a series of meetings in Utrecht; at the close of one of which a man led the way to the Penitent Form. It was the former chief of the shipbroker's office. That night there was joy in Heaven, and the next night, with her time-worn Bible before her and her spectacles eyes upturned to Heaven, an old woman in a distant village sang a doxology of praise."

The Officer paused as though he had come to the end of the story.

"Well?" queried the man with the note book.

"That's all," was the quiet reply.

"How long is it since the man you mention was converted?"

"Thirteen years."

"Why, then, is this bit of ancient history; have you not something up to date?"

"Yes, much—"

"Interesting you, what became of the man who trumped to Utrecht?"

"What became of him?—I don't follow you; don't you understand?"

"That I am that man."—"Social News."

How To Make Efficient Salvationists

An Address By COMMISSIONER RICHARDS To The Toronto Young People's Workers

The Field Officer and Young People's Sergeant-Major are responsible for selecting Young People to serve as Company Guards. It is a great blunder to think we must have some lovely old veteran or other to come from the Seniors down to the Juniors to teach them. We are, of course, delighted to have any, no matter what their age, whose hearts are in this work. If they have got inspiration and a call, give them work to do. But it is a mistake to think that only old people are suitable for the Young People's Work.

I have seen 350 Officers sitting in a gallery looking down on an infant class, while a boy fifteen years' old held them so enthralled that they were speechless with admiration of his blackboard, and tray, and pen. I have seen Newfoundland twice, Bermuda once, and visited ten Corps in Canada West, so that I know some little about the condition of the Young People's Work in the Dominion. I am pleased to say that the Officers and Young People's Workers are improving this important branch of the Army's operations. The great cry amongst all our workers is, however, for information for more detailed explanation of things, so that they can understand and work according to the best principles and interests; and thus produce the best results.

The Duty and Responsibility that are upon the Junior Corps is my thought.

There is a duty devolving upon the Junior Corps towards the Senior Corps, and there is a responsibility devolving upon everybody engaged in the Junior Work to develop the intelligence of the children until they are efficient to become Soldiers in the Senior ranks, and efficient leaders for our branches of our Corps Work. We cannot, in the years that we come, depend upon getting grown-up men and women in sufficient numbers to train for all departments of our work; and, therefore, it is our business, our responsibility, to train leaders out of our Young People.

Efficient Corps work demands leadership. Don't let us forget that if one is to be an Officer, it is Paul says, and qualified in every way, then he must be trained. If, for instance, I am to be a Junior Work Sergeant-Major, a Penitent Form agent, I must be trained before I can do the thing. The time for doing things in slipshod fashion has gone by. We must have trained people for our work, and we must train them ourselves.

I have been looking up and down this country, and I see certain girls and boys who are absolutely left out. They go to the meetings and all that sort of thing, and yet never get the chance to become efficient leaders.

I am going to explain to you the phases of our Junior Work as it is to be placed on the beginning right up.

We will begin at the Cradle Roll—the birth of the child. The value of this Cradle Roll is wonderful. The more I go about and move amongst the higher officials of the Church, the more I can see they are now absolutely putting their eggs into the Young People's basket.

That is the phrase I used when I came here first.

I was greatly struck by a little incident that came under my notice recently. I went to a very fine church and asked for the vestry. "Oh," said the lady, "there is no vestry now. The minister had this room for a study and vestry (a fine room it was), but he saw the need of a boy's Bible class, and so he has given it up for that purpose."

I don't think there is an individual of any rank right down to the youngest Company Guard here, who does not see the value of the Cradle Roll to the Juniors' Work. But I am not so sure that we are doing all that we might do in the matter, and my contention is we have got to pull up. The Cradle Roll is, first, to make a link between the home and the Corps; second, to establish closer relations between the home and the Corps through the baby.

Now, the recruiting ground for our Junior operations is the Cradle Roll—the baby. The recruiting ground for our Senior Work is our Junior Work. Simple, isn't it? Children in the cradle looked after, and then put on the roll of the Senior Corps at the proper time. Now, this gives the three-fold principle of help—the Baby, the Home, the Corps.

The baby is helped by the love we show it, and the home will be benefited by the interest taken in the baby. I never found it to fail. I was billeted this week with a lady with whom I stayed months ago. There was no baby there then, but on this occasion I had not been in the house two minutes before she told me of the little new-come. "Bring it down," I said. "I must see it this very moment." The baby was brought down all asleep to show me its beauty, and I admired it, kissed it two or three times—and woke it up.

I want to impress upon you this thing: The Corps, by cultivating the interests of the Young People in their little ones, increases our own numbers. It works out this way: News is brought to the Corps that little Jimmy Johnson is born. There is a girl thirteen years' of age in this Corps, and the Captain or the Sergeant-Major, or the person appointed for that purpose, goes to the home and asks whether the baby is to be placed on the Young People's Cradle Roll. If so, the mother is informed that this little girl, Jane Mary Jones, will, from this time forward, until further notice, be put in charge of that baby—that is one of the outside functions of your Life-Saving Guards. This girl, we will say, is a Life-Saving Guard, and we further say to her, "That baby is your charge, you can go there on Saturday."

Any relation of your's come to "The Army?" I asked.

"No!"

"He was a clean, well-educated, smart boy. I saw a girl do the same thing. They had been trained to do it, and this is our business, to do it, and to train the boys and girls as Company Guards and other workers. Let them come in and we shall soon have enough to do our work."

That is the phrase I used when I came here first.

days, and say, "Mrs. Thompson, can I take out the little baby?" The mother, glad to have the baby in safe hands for a little while, says, "Yes, there he is!" So, Jane Mary looks after that baby and goes nursing it on Saturday afternoons, takes it flowers, and takes it out for an airing, and is delighted to do it. That is her good turn. Now, don't confine it to the Guards, but there is a good opening in giving the Guards something to do in this way. In all the activities of The Army, none is more important, more deserving of the highest service or greater in its influence than the Cradle Roll. The Corps should put its most skillful workers into that department, which touches life in the bud, and organize the work on definite and progressive lines. The Cradle Roll ages are from birth to three or four years. "Every Field Officer, Young People's Sergeant-Major, and also all Junior Workers, should be recruiting officers for this roll, and if they have not the enthusiasm for Junior Work, and say, "It was forced into this; I was dragged into it, I have no heart for it!" "All right," we say, "you are not in the right place, and we will find you another sphere of Salvation labour." Only the Young People's Work and the Cradle Roll must go Company Guard, should I repeat, be a worker in the recruiting of the children from the cradle. Now, watch the babies, the business of the Cradle Roll Sergeant—wherever there is a Corps Lie enough we shall appoint a woman Sergeant to go to know all the babies in the neighbourhood. Secure the permission of the parent for the baby's name to be entered on the Roll. Issue a certificate and a birthday card for every child on the Cradle Roll from the first birthday up to the fourth. Then have a little tea party, invite the mothers and fathers to come to the birthday party of the Cradle Roll, one year. The older girls in the Corps could be made the messengers between the Corps and the home—use the Life-Saving Guards for that purpose. If you want to reclaim the Young People, employ them. It is no use talking to me of what can and cannot be done with children. We have had and seen the photographs of them when they were employed by the Officers they were red-hot for the meetings. When they had nothing to do the next week, well to go, makes a great difference to them. I have seen it in my own family. I have seen it elsewhere. Let us employ them, that is a most important thing.

"Now," said the man with the note book, "you know something about 'The Army's Social Work in Europe'?"

"The Officer nodded.

"In thirty minutes we shall be in Paris," he said.

"Then in that time will you please tell me of just a single case?"

Assist in Week-end Meetings at Rhodes Avenue, Conducted by Captain Bond.

Captain Olive Bond conducted the services at Rhodes Avenue on Sunday, Oct. 1st. As this was one of her old Corps, the comrades were pleased to see her. Cadet Emma Bond read the Scripture and spoke in the Holiness meeting. We had with us for the week-end Privates Oakley and Trunk and Bandman Plumridge, who were a help to us. Private Trunks gave his testimony on Sunday night, which was a help and blessing to all. He told how he could take his stand for Christ in the camp, and said the soldiers respected one who stands true.

The Captain addressed the meeting, and spoke on God's gift, illustrated by different gifts which were being made in connection with the great war. After we closed the meeting two souls who were under conviction remained behind and fully surrendered.

Sunday at Camp Borden

BRIGADIER MORRIS RELATES THE DAY'S HAPPENINGS

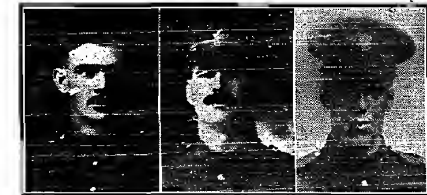

"Yes, Mr. Editor, Major McGillivray and I spent a very interesting and useful Sunday, Oct. 1st, at Camp Borden. The Major, I may say, was most anxious to see his son in khaki, who, by the way, is now taking his last leave before going overseas."

"Just so, Brigadier. Well, how did you fill in the day?"

"To begin with, our Salvationists in khaki were assembled in the morning in a large tent, a goodly number of men. Captain Kinnimus (our Chaplain) was the master of ceremonies. An excellent Band, composed wholly of Salvationists, was discouraging sweet music. Major McGillivray and I, of course, felt right at home at once. We had an excellent meeting, and one soul at the Mercy Seat."

"Where did you dine?"

"Dine! Mr. Lee, of the Y.M.C.A., supplied our needs gratis. And such a dinner! It was so good. I conversed with the chef after the meal, to thank and congratulate him, and he assured me he had cooked a front quarter of beef of uncertain age!

Private Trunks, Private Oakley, and Bandman Plumridge, three Soldiers of the Rhodes Avenue Corps, now on military service

That may be, Mr. Editor, but I assure you that roast beef was as tender as chicken! After that Captain Kinnimus hurried us off to the 'bunkies'."

"What's that?"

"Oh, that's what the khaki men call the military jail or guard room. Here assembled were forty men or so. Excellent fellows, too. Got in to a bit of a row for some breach of discipline or misconduct. Anyway, they made an excellent crowd to speak to, and we did our best to help them."

"How long did that meeting last, Brigadier?"

"Nearly an hour. I may say, the jail at the camp is the particular responsibility of Captain Kinnimus at the camp every Sunday."

"Well, off we went to an open-air. A good crowd of Salvation Army Bandmen and Soldiers had already assembled. Sergeant Barsby and Bandman Ashby and others were full of energy, smiles, and expectation. They turned out excellently!"

"Do you mean to say all the Salvationists in Camp Borden were present?"

"Well, now, Mr. Editor, don't press me too closely. Frankly, I must say a few were missing for some reason or other."

"Then all turned out to the meetings who could be present?"

"No, I could hardly say that. Just a few—a very few. I would have you understand—Mr. Editor, of our men in khaki we cannot stand up to the fight in the camp. They need more grace and backbone. These camps are very much like what I found in the Klondike in '98. A man is either out-and-out for God or he heartedly for the Salvationist sinner. The Bandmen played perfectly. They certainly helped to get the crowd. Soldiers were fine specimens of hot Salvationism. Yes, Mr. Editor, I enjoyed those four meetings immensely, and I came away very proud to be a Salvationist. The influence and work of our comrades in khaki in the military camps is hardly exceeded anywhere."

"Very good, Brigadier, that certainly speaks well of them."

"Just allow me a concluding word or two, Mr. Editor. Will you Corps Commanding Officers, Secretaries of Corps, and others help me to join our husband. Mrs. McGowan has been a most faithful worker for the last six years, and will be much missed. She conducted four meetings every week in the Home of Industry, and won the affection of the old folks there."

Sister Mrs. Lowry has also laboured for England in order to be near her husband who is on military service."

Sister Mrs. Knapp, a Dutch emigrant, has been on a visit to Holland but is expected back shortly."

The League is now visiting the institutions in the city, cheering and blessing the inmates."

Last week two of the workers—Sisters Mrs. Turner and Smiley—paid their first visit to a military hospital on College Street, to distribute 'War Cries' and speak to the men."

Mr. Major Moore, whilst visiting Weston Sanatorium, was specially asked to speak to one of the patients on spiritual matters. He seemed very earnest to grasp the truth, and she prayed with him before leaving."

The League members are offering their services gratis to assist with the catering for the Officers at the Congress."

comparatively few men deny that what He wants is men and women who can and do constantly and readily testify that He saves from sin. The truly saved man is not a misapprehension as to the power from which he has escaped. He knows it in the true light, for from it as he would from a pestilence, and years over the Salvationist still under its power. He feels its sin, desires to see it destroyed and banished, and because of this he cannot refrain from talking the power of the Blood. While a thing but the Blood can cleanse the vilest, and that to the uttermost."

Hating sin as God does, striving to His own Son in the provision of a substitute for its penalty. He wants the less loves the sinners. He wants to see him free and made happy. He knows that the Blood can cleanse the vilest, and that to the uttermost."

Be Definite
Love for God implies hatred of evil (says the British "Cry"). Loving Him it is impossible to be indifferent to those things which He hates. Nowhere in the Bible do we find any encouragement of the idea that He is tolerant towards any kind of wickedness. He will have none of it, and has declared that those who hold on to it shall for ever be banished from His sight."

How clear then should be the testimony of those whom He has saved from the bondage of sin! He defines the attitude of His Soldiers towards all things sinful!

God is not so much in need to-day of witnesses that He exists—

as He is in need of men and women who will testify that He exists—

For a time and some for ever. She continues to pray for all—Bandmaster Wm. Ratcliffe, late of Fernie.

My work had taken me up four miles into the hills, and after I had walked eight miles, because of the heavy rain, I tarried at one of our Criminal Settlements which was nearby. While in with the Officer having breakfast, there was a great rambling and talking at the window, which became so great that we had to stop.

Two of our settlers, a young boy and a woman had been down to the bazaar, and the boy had got his eyes upon what he claimed was a detective, so he hurried home and gave the alarm. All the settlers hurried to the window to the Captain to find out what was the matter. I never saw such sparkling eyes of fear like their past crimes had come up before them, and they were wondering for which they were going to be accused.

The Captain, to quiet them down, went to the phone and rang up the police station, and was informed that the officer who had been seen was going up into the mountains. I could not help but say from the depth of my heart: "God bless The Salvation Army for its great work. Here are these people, born criminals, who know of no other way of making a living but by stealing—mostly all are guilty of crime."

On one Settlement that I have been lately there are only 21 settlers, yet this number represent 285 convictions, and they have spent between them 441 years in jail. The Salvation Army comes along and takes them under the shelter of its roof, with all their crime; gives up its best Officers to work among them; spends more money than it takes in at the law, and protects them from any false alarms. I tell you, the depth of this work God alone understands."

It was by picking up a paper and reading an account of something like the foregoing that led two young men to come all the way from their home in Assam, India, a distance of about two thousands miles, to see our Commissioner, about a month ago. This is the story:—

A few years ago, up in the borders of Assam, near China, two young men got converted, and were filled with the Holy Ghost, so that they led many of their comrades to Christ. Among others that accepted Christ was a rich fruit dealer. One day one of these young men found a paper with a story in it about the work of The Salvation Army among the Criminals of India. It so took hold of him that he was anxious to know more about this great people. So one day he found on the bookshelf in a store a book about The Salvation Army. It happened to be a copy of the Articles of War.

The young men were delighted with them, and desired that The Salvation Army would come to their country. So they wrote to the Commissioner and asked him if they might come to Simla and learn about The Salvation Army. The Commissioner replied by saying that if any of them understood English, that they could come to our Training Home. He then got a wire saying that they were coming to Simla.

Soon after the two young men arrived in Simla. I am told that they walked a greater part of the two thousand miles. The Commissioner had a talk with them, and, Oh, how they pleaded for The Army to go to their country! The Commissioner made arrangements for them to go to the Training Home and learn about God and The Army. But after they had been in Simla a few days one of them died. He was given a Salvation Soldier's funeral and buried with the saints.

The other young man left a few days after the funeral for our Training Home in Bombay, and is there to-day, hoping some day to bring The Salvation Army to his country. Oh, my brother and sister, there is yet a great call for service! The call is still ringing out clear to the world that Paul heard in his time—Come over and help us! Years for faithful service in India.—Frem Singh (Cowan), Captain.

to watch for him passing by on horse back, and then they knew that it was time to get ready for church.

Until quite recently I could always be found on the street, with a bundle of "War Cries" under my arm; but age is beginning to tell, and although he had not been about a month ago, he was one of the first to have his flag flying for the Harvest Festival Effort.

Mrs. Miles, who is twelve years his junior, is a staunch Salvationist, and while not such an active worker in the Corps, she has been often renewed "by the staff" to allow Dad to take his place in the work. May God abundantly bless them and may their lives be an inspiration to all the readers of "The War Cry."

the Brigadier came as shells bursting around, and because they were shells of love and truth, they hit and hearts were pierced and their consciences awakened by the true facts that the Brigadier put light upon from her subject."

The most beautiful sight of the day was fifteen dear souls adding forgiveness; making a total of eighteen for the week-end."

Monday night we had the wind-up continued from Sunday night, also the sale of fruit and vegetables."

Now, it was the Brigadier's wish that I should, in my report, be half of herself, send to all Canadian readers of "The War Cry" and especially Salvationists, her kind regards and sincere wishes. She still holds fondest recollections of Canada and Canadian Salvationists, and she is proud to represent the same by her Maple Leaf Badge. Her heart goes out towards the dear mothers and wives and others who have sacrificed relationships of their dearest, some for a time and some for ever. She continues to pray for all—Bandmaster Wm. Ratcliffe, late of Fernie.

VETERAN SALVATIONISTS

A Brief Sketch of Brother and Sister Miles of Barrie.

Brother Miles or "Dad" Miles, as he is generally known, is in his eighty-fourth year, and very seldom misses a meeting. In his youth he felt the call for the ministry, and, after passing his examinations successfully, he disobeyed the call and eventually became an open backslider, and in that state he landed in Canada and took up farming in the vicinity of Edenvalle, not far from Barrie.

In the course of time, his son, who is now Staff-Captain Miles in the United States, got converted at Sarria, and when he visited his home some thirty-two years ago Dad again became convicted of sin and visited The Salvation Army Corps at Stayner (now closed).

On coming home from the meeting the second Sunday the Holy Spirit so took hold of him that he got out of the rig, and kneeling on the roadside, he prayed that God would pardon the past, or not let him rise from his knees again. There and then God wonderfully saved him and for thirty-two years God has been very real to him.

While living on the farm he had eleven miles to go to the meetings, but distance made no difference to Dad, he was always to be found at his post; in fact, the farmers used to watch for him passing by on horse back, and then they knew that it was time to get ready for church.

Until quite recently I could always be found on the street, with a bundle of "War Cries" under my arm; but age is beginning to tell, and although he had not been about a month ago, he was one of the first to have his flag flying for the Harvest Festival Effort.

WAR CRY

REQUISITES FOR OFFICERSHIP

Elsewhere will be found an account of the Welcome to the Training College of the women cadets at Toronto, and it certainly peaks well for the vitality of The Salvation Army in the East and the Canadian Territories that at this time of disruption and martial riot, when eligible young men are everywhere enlisting and there is a big demand and high wages for intelligent young women, that there should be found approximately a hundred young people who are willing to make the sacrifices necessary to Officership. The bulk of them are young women, as may well be expected; and, speaking generally, they constitute a promising generation. The Salvation Army Training College holds out a great privilege to young men and women in the way of being trained to be effective disseminators of the Word of Life; and we sincerely trust that those who have been accepted for Officership, and are now Cadets, will make the most of the opportunities that are afforded them for acquiring the knowledge that will aid them to be ministers of souls and successful administrators of Salvation Army work.

We would also urge all those who should be Candidates for Officership, who for some reason not known to themselves have been unable to get their position and their duty to God. For doubt some are hypersensitive to the question of education, and we fear that they would not make good showing in the College, acts as a deterrent, but we should like to say that The Salvation Army does not appraise Candidates by their educational attainments. Education is useful, a nimble intelligence is good; there are other gifts and characteristics that are helpful to the Officer, but the three great necessities are Godliness, energy, and a kind heart. Those who have accomplished the greatest amount of good are the ranks of The Salvation Army, those in whom the three foregoing qualities have had the greatest development and free play. If you, reader, are of the requisite age, health, and possess Godliness, energy, and have a heart that can be touched with a feeling for the afflictions of others, you are a person that is required by The Salvation Army. COMMISSIONER SOWTON

CONDUCTS EXCELLENT WEEK-END MEETINGS AT VERNON—SPEAKS AT OPENING OF NELSON FRUIT FAIR AND VISITS THE PROVINCIAL JAIL

THE visit of Commissioner and Mrs. Sowton to Vernon was a success, from every standpoint. Commissioner and Mrs. Sowton, also Brigadier McLean (the Divisional Commander), were met at the station by Captain Marsland. The party was soon hurried away to the beautiful home of Mr. Price Ellison, M.P., where Commissioner and Mrs. Sowton were billeted for the week-end.

Saturday night, after a roasting open-air, a good crowd came to the inside meeting to hear the Commissioner give a most interesting lecture on India. Commissioner and Mrs. Sowton sang a number of Hindi choruses, to the delight of those gathered together. In the meeting were a large crowd of military men, with the rest of the people present, enjoyed the meeting thoroughly. Captain and Mrs. Marsland had the Hall beautifully decorated, as this was the Harvest Festival week-end.

Sunday was a great day in the history of The Salvation Army at Vernon. Commissioner and Mrs. Sowton were at their best; and all the meetings—both open-air and indoor—were a great success and a blessing of God. The Harvest Festival was a great inspiration to all present. Mrs. Sowton's Bible reading and remarks were much enjoyed, and the Commissioner's address was full of deep spiritual instruction and helpful illustrations. Brigadier McLean took hold of the prayer meeting and all present gave themselves afresh to God for fullness of power.

The afternoon meeting was held in the Vernon Curling Rink. A good crowd gathered to hear the Commissioner lecture on The Salvation Army and this great war. It was a great revelation to the audience to hear of the great work The Army is doing amongst the troops.

Brigadier McLean presided in the absence of the Mayor, who had been unexpectedly called out of town. Many of Vernon's most prominent citizens were in the audience, also a goodly number of military men. The Rev. Mr. Howe, of the Baptist Church, gave a short address, and asked for some special help for the work of The Army. A good offering was taken up.

Mr. Howe, in his address, said it had not been for The Army and The Army's General, he might not have been a Minister of the Gospel to-day. He thanked God for the good work The Army is doing throughout the world. He was delighted with the sermon by Mr. Sowton's lecture, and said he had never before listened to such an interesting story. He also referred to the work of The Army, which Mr. Marsland are doing in Vernon.

On Sunday evening crowds of men stood around the open-air and listened to the earnest testimonies of the Soldiers and many joined in singing when Brigadier McLean asked them to join in the singing of "Nearer, My God, to Thee." It was taken up fine.

The Hall was filled for the inside meeting. The Divisional Commander gave out the opening song, "Bringing in the Sheaves." After earnest prayer, the Commissioner gave us a most interesting Bible-reading, after which the Band played very nicely. And Soon the Reaping Time Will Come." Mrs. Sowton spoke with very great earnestness, and told some interesting stories of life on the battle field in France. The military men enjoyed Mrs. Sowton's address very much. The Commissioner's address was based on the words, "Son, remember!" This was a most powerful address, and took hold of the crowd and many remembered their past and looked at the sinful life which stamped conviction on the faces of many backsliders and sinners who should have yielded. One dear old man came out and got gloriously saved.

This finished a glorious week-end. Captain and Mrs. Marsland are doing well here, and were delighted to have Commissioner and Mrs. Sowton visit their Corps.

After the excellent week-end at Vernon, Commissioner and Mrs. Sowton were accompanied by Brigadier McLean, left for Nelson. The steamer makes many calls at the various villages along the shores. At West Robson the party boarded the train for Nelson. They arrived at 10 p.m., and were met and warmly welcomed by Ensign Caruthers and a number of the local companies. The 225th Battalion Band was at the depot and played a number of patriotic airs. This kind courtesy on the part of the military authorities was much appreciated. Commissioner and Mrs. Sowton were kindly entertained by a warm friend of The Army—Mr. E. A. Crease.

Our Leaders' programme for the following day, Wednesday, was certainly a full one, including a visit to the Nelson Fruit Fair, a meeting at the Provincial Jail, a Soldiers' meeting and tea, and a public service at night.

In the afternoon, at the invitation of the directors of the Nelson Fruit Fair, the Commissioner gave a short address at the formal opening. The fruit in this district is of a very high grade, and our Leaders could only help making many favourable comments as they were escorted from one department to another.

By special arrangement, the Commissioner held a meeting with the prisoners in the Provincial Jail. Mr. Jarvis, the Warden, gave the party a warm welcome. Both Mrs. Sowton and the Commissioner addressed the men, and a deep impression was made upon them, not less than three raised their hand for special aid on their behalf. Brigadier McLean and Ensign Caruthers assisted the Commissioner in the service.

The sisters of the Corps prepared an excellent welcome supper, and after all present had done justice to the good things they had so kindly provided, our beloved Leaders addressed the Soldiers gathered together for the occasion. A blessed time was spent and much of the Presence of God was felt.

A splendid open-air was held previous to the special meeting at Citadel. E. A. Crease, Esq., presided, and in his remarks paid a high tribute to our Leaders, and also made reference to the important work The Army was doing at the front and in the training camps. Mrs. Sowton read the Scripture lessons.

Half Hundred Women Cadets

PUBLICLY WELCOMED AT TORONTO TEMPLE—THE COMMISSIONER IN CHARGE

THE composition of the present Session of Cadets is direct evidence that The Salvation Army's young men are serving King and country, and that the women have nobly stepped into the breach to fill their places.

Fifty-one bright-faced, happy, vigorous, and enthusiastic young women occupied the Temple platform on the night of Friday, Oct. 6th. "As fine a lot of Cadets as ever came into Training," to quote Major DesBrisay's words. They had marched in according to Division, and expressed the hope that when commissioning day came quite a number of young women with large hearts and sympathetic dispositions would be sent as workers to the various Social Institutions.

Quite an outburst of cheering was provoked by Major DesBrisay when she stated that the women of The Salvation Army have not waited for the war to make their presence felt. "The war has made the men see more clearly what women can do," she said, "I believe, these Cadets will not take a back seat, but will prove themselves worthy of the welcome they have received in Toronto to-night."

Brigadier Bell, the Training College Principal, called to mind the sacrifices made by both the Cadets and their parents in paying the price of Officership in The Salvation Army. He gave a very interesting chapter from his own early experiences, which he said greatly helped him to understand and enter into the feelings of the Cadets at this particular period of their lives.

He went on to point out that behind the Divine call to Officership was the world's need. God still sees humanity in bondage as He did in the days of Moses, and gives visions of their sin and sorrow to those He chooses as leaders of His people, stirring them up to rush forth to the rescue. Paying a tribute to the women of The Salvation Army, he said that they have won a front seat in The Army world years ago. "I hope that what we will do in the Cadets of this Session," he concluded, "will enable them to keep that place."

A most practical and appropriate address for the occasion was given by the Commissioner on the text, "What is that in thine hand? After briefly relating the history of the call to deliver Israel, he expanded the idea that it is our everyday talents that God requires to do the work of men. The women of The Salvation Army had always had an equal opportunity with men, and now they were responding nobly and willingly to the call for extra workers as was evidenced by the present splendid Session of Cadets.

He then called on Brigadier Bettbridge to speak, representing the Young People of Canada East. The Brigadier said that he thought the Young People would like him to say to the Cadets, "Remember Jesus"—to remember His compassion for sinners. Once there was a hardened criminal who was willing to say to the Cadets, "I'm sorry for you, and Jesus is sorry, too." Months later the warden of the prison expressed surprise that he had had time to trouble with the man. "I was changed by the tears and sympathy of a little girl," was the explanation. The Brigadier went on to urge the Cadets to remember the zeal and love of Jesus, when tempted to be indolent and neglectful of their work. "You are called to the highest work ever committed to human hands," he concluded. "May God's blessing be on you always."

A very hearty welcome was extended to the Cadets by Mrs. Lieut.-Colonel Rees on behalf of the Women's Social Workers. At the same time she took a long look forward to the commissioning day came quite a number of young women with large hearts and sympathetic dispositions would be sent as workers to the various Social Institutions.

Quite an outburst of cheering was provoked by Major DesBrisay when she stated that the women of The Salvation Army have not waited for the war to make their presence felt. "The war has made the men see more clearly what women can do," she said, "I believe, these Cadets will not take a back seat, but will prove themselves worthy of the welcome they have received in Toronto to-night."

Brigadier Bell, the Training College Principal, called to mind the sacrifices made by both the Cadets and their parents in paying the price of Officership in The Salvation Army. He gave a very interesting chapter from his own early experiences, which he said greatly helped him to understand and enter into the feelings of the Cadets at this particular period of their lives.

He went on to point out that behind the Divine call to Officership was the world's need. God still sees humanity in bondage as He did in the days of Moses, and gives visions of their sin and sorrow to those He chooses as leaders of His people, stirring them up to rush forth to the rescue. Paying a tribute to the women of The Salvation Army, he said that they have won a front seat in The Army world years ago. THE CHIEF OF THE STAFF'S VISIT

CANADA WEST

The title of the address that the Chief of the Staff will deliver in the Patinage Theatre, Winnipeg, on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 12th, will be, "How Goes The Army." This title is very suggestive, and the subject, no doubt, will be an intensely interesting one.

The Chief of the Staff will take tea with the Officers on the evening of the day of his arrival in Winnipeg. The Manitoba Hall has been hired for the occasion.

Regina Salvationists and friends, also a large percentage of the citizens, are delighted to know that Commissioner Howard, the Chief of the Staff, will pay their city a visit. The City Hall Auditorium has been secured for the meeting to be conducted by him on Tuesday, Nov. 14th.

The fact that the Chief of the Staff will visit Calgary has aroused considerable interest. Arrangements are well in hand for his reception.

CANADA EAST

The Premier of Ontario, Hon. W. H. Hearst, has kindly consented to preside at the Sunday afternoon meeting at which the Chief will lecture on The Salvation Army. As is generally known the Premier has recently returned from Europe, and while in London he spent half a day at the International Headquarters of The Salvation Army, where he had interviews with The General and the Chief of the Staff, and was profoundly impressed with The Army's Leaders and what he saw of the Organization.

In connection with other arrangements for the comfort and well-being of the Officers who will meet in Council in Toronto, the Commissioner has decided that the Council Chamber shall be converted into a comfortable rest room for the visitors to sit in during the intervals between the sessions. A cup of tea and light refreshments will also be provided before the afternoon and evening sessions.

The social side of the Officers' visit is receiving ample consideration, but, while all this is being done, let every Officer pray and believe for God Almighty to give Canada such a spiritual uplift that the old charter will roll forward over every obstacle and that a mighty winner's work for God will be accomplished.

Three Young People from Territorial Headquarters have farewelled to enter the Training College. They are all daughters of Officers, being Cadet Emma Bond, daughter of Lieut.-Colonel and Mrs. Bond; Cadet Violet Malmgren, daughter of the late Colonel and Mrs. Malmgren; and Cadet Frieda Knight, daughter of Adjutant and Mrs. Knight.

WARRIORS FOR THE FRONT Many Comrades Farewell from Home Corps to Enter Training College

WOMEN WARRIORS

Leave for the Battle's Front

We are rejoicing at New Glasgow today. Ensign Beecroft, that we shall be represented at the Training College this Session. God has abundantly blessed our efforts, and three of our best young women workers have consecrated their lives for active service, and by the time this report appears, they will be under the care of the Training College Principal.

Cadet E. Husev, Cadet C. Marshall, and Cadet M. Stevens are the products of our Young People's Work, and their activities in the work of the Corps has made them very popular, and they are leaving many well-wishers behind, for their future success in the noble mission which they have voluntarily undertaken.

On Sunday, Oct. 1st, we had our Farewell Sunday, and their parting songs and testimonies were filled with emotion, and tears of joy flowed freely from many eyes. May God continue to make them channels of blessing.

The comrades of New Glasgow are looking forward with great anticipation of much good work being accomplished by these three women warriors from New Glasgow.

TWO CANDIDATES

Farewell for the Training College. On Sunday, Oct. 1st, at Ridgeway, a farewell meeting for Candidates Poag and Allard was held; the latter Candidate, who comes out of Latvia, has been visiting here, farewelled from this Corps. A good open-air was held, fourteen being present, followed by a splendid indoor meeting, well attended.

Many kind words were spoken regarding Candidate Poag having been especially those spoken by her mother, Sergeant-Major Poag, in which she thanked God for the example he had been to her in her life, and as a result she has been able to see her enter the Corps. Candidate Poag will be actively missed in the Corps, because of her willingness and cheerfulness to perform any duty falling in her way. Her future work will, no doubt, be blessed, because the always wears a smile.

The two Candidates sang a duet, after which two comrades were enrolled as Soldiers. Then Candidate Poag gave an address on "Being Prepared to Meet God." The prayer meeting followed, in which God's Spirit was felt.—H. F.

A GOOD DAY

The Harvest Festival Effort at Ridgeway was a success in every way. Our target was smashed with ease. On Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 23-24th, Staff-Captain and Mrs. Poole were with us, and brought much blessing to all. The attendances were excellent, finishing up at night with five souls at the Cross, the Band and String Quartette, which has recently been organized, rendered good service.

SUBSTANTIAL PROGRESS

Comrade Farewells for a Wider Sphere of Usefulness.

It is some months since a report was sent from the Whitney Pier Corps, but, under the command of Ensign and Mrs. Gillingham, substantial progress has been made.

On Sunday last we said farewell to Brother Bowring, who has been accepted for Officership, and appointed to assist at Halifax. Mr. Brother Bowring, while at Whitney Pier, has been a great blessing and proved himself a man of God, earnest and devoted. We shall miss him very much. But our loss is others' gain. Our prayers go with him for his success and blessing.

At the farewell service at night the Hall was packed to excess, and from start to finish, the Spirit of God was working in a wonderful way. The Ensign's address was full of power and right to the point, and the speaking of Brother Bowring, he said what a great help he had been, never missing an open-air or inside meeting, week-day or Sunday, except when prevented by business, and he felt how much Brother Bowring would be missed. Yet he knew that God had called, and he had answered that call, and now we must pray that God will lead some one to fill his place. And our prayers were not unanswered. No sooner had the invitation been given than the Cross, soon to be followed by another.

TRAIN COLL. PRINCIPAL

Spends Profitable Week-end, With Good Results.

On Sept. 23rd-24th, at Kingston (says C. J.) we were favoured by a visit from Brigadier Bell. It was a week-end of blessing and inspiration. The Holiness meeting was a real heart-searching time. Five comrades reconsecrated their lives to God. The comrades Sunday afternoon was a real Free-and-Easy. At night the Brigadier spoke with great power, conviction struck home to the hearts of many. Four married couples were present for salvation, besides four others; making a total of seventeen seekers for the day.

On Monday morning the Brigadier, with Ensign and Mrs. Smith, visited all the covers, and all testified to the saving and keeping power of God. All are turning up to the open-air and meetings.

THREE SOULS SURRENDER

On a recent Sunday night at Seal Cove, after a well-thought prayer meeting, three souls sought Salvation. Sunday, Sept. 24th, we said good-bye to Candidate Loveless, who farewelled for the Training College. The comrades Sunday afternoon was a real Free-and-Easy. At night the Brigadier spoke with great power, conviction struck home to the hearts of many. Four married couples were present for salvation, besides four others; making a total of seventeen seekers for the day.

WILL BE MISSED

Farewelling Comrades—Good Times

In the Palmerston Citadel on Sunday night, Oct. 1st, a farewell service was held for Cadet MacBride, who is entering the Fall Training Session, and also for Recruiting Sergeant Mrs. Bender, who, with her family, is leaving for Owen Sound. Both comrades spoke, and a good spirit was in the meeting. Captain Martin spoke on "Isaiah's Vision."

On Tuesday night a farewell tea was held in the Citadel for Soldiers and friends in honour of our departing comrades. The sisters of the Corps arranged a magnificent tea, and everything was all that could be desired. Much credit is due to every worker. After tea had been partaken of, a special Soldiers' and friends' meeting was held, when our comrades gave their final farewell addresses.

To Cadet Bridge a special platform Bible was presented, as a token of the Corps' respect and admiration. We wish her God-speed, praying that her days in the Training College may be crowned with blessing and spiritual uplift, for the great work ahead of her.

Sister Mrs. Bender will also be missed very much. She has been a faithful worker. As a Local Officer her loss will be keenly felt. Her life has been one of great influence for good.

We shall miss both these comrades very much, as in their going away we lose our best; but we know that other workers of the Vineyard will be brightened by their presence. May God go with them, and raise up others to carry on the work here.—A. W. M.

HARMONY IN CORPS

We are still having glorious times at Dartmouth (says J. T. W.). On Sunday, Oct. 1st, we had with us Staff-Captain Byers (the Chancellor). The comrades Sunday afternoon was a real Free-and-Easy. At night the Brigadier spoke with great power, conviction struck home to the hearts of many. Four married couples were present for salvation, besides four others; making a total of seventeen seekers for the day.

On Monday morning the Brigadier, with Ensign and Mrs. Smith, visited all the covers, and all testified to the saving and keeping power of God. All are turning up to the open-air and meetings.

BAND VISITS HESPELER

On Friday, Sept. 29th, the Guelph Band and Songsters, with many of the comrades, paid a visit to Hesper, and gave an excellent programme in the Methodist Church. The church was crowded. Mr. T. Hall, M.P.P., ably filled the chair, and paid many compliments to the band's work in the town. To God be all the glory.

ALL-ROUND PROGRESS

Candidate Farewells for Training College.

The work at North Bay is progressing favourably under the leadership of Adjutant and Mrs. Poole (says M. Hojman). We are having some real, interesting meetings, and God is blessing our efforts. Adjutant and Mrs. Poole have been a great blessing to us. We are having some real good open-air meetings, and large crowds attend the same.

On Sept. 26th we had a farewell tea for Candidate Thompson, who has left us to go to the Training College. While we shall miss her very much, we believe that God has called her to some other part of His great Vineyard to work for Him.

Our Junior Work is going ahead splendidly, under the leadership of Sergeant-Major Passmore. We have a real live attendance every Sunday at Sunday School. Every Monday night we have our Young People's meeting, which is conducted by Mrs. Adjutant Poole. Mrs. Poole is taking much interest in these meetings, and they are a great help to all who attend them. The Adjutant took the meeting last Monday, and at the close three juniors came to the Penitence Room, asking Christ to forgive them their sin.

SPECIALS CONDUCT

Rousing and Instructive Meetings

Bowmanville's Harvest Festival was a glorious success. Our target was smashed with ease. On Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 23-24th, Staff-Captain and Mrs. Poole were with us, and brought much blessing to all. The attendances were excellent, finishing up at night with five souls at the Cross, the Band and String Quartette, which has recently been organized, rendered good service.

COMRADES EAGER

For the Salvation of the People

Another Harvest Festival victory has been scored at Belleville, and our target of $230 raised. All the comrades worked well, and God's blessing was upon the Effort. On the Sunday following the Harvest Festival, services three souls knelt at the Mercy Seat. The revival spirit is manifest in our midst, and comrades are being led into prayer for souls.—Corps' Correspondent.

SOLDIERS IN KHAKI

Receive Soldier's Guide from Corps

Captain and Mrs. Spooner were at West Toronto on Sunday, Oct. 1st (says J. S. T.). The morning meeting proved very helpful indeed to many a soul, as the Captain dealt with our responsibility to the command of God on the words, "Whatsoever He hath said unto thee, do it."

The afternoon meeting was bright with some clear-cut testimonies intermingled with some swinging choruses.

At night we were glad to have with us Staff-Captain Ayres, from the States; his testimony being listened to with the closest attention. At this service we also said good-bye to four of our comrades who are under orders for overseas: Sergeant Shill, Private S. Hunt, and Bandsman J. Aird of the 16th and 19th Battalions. These comrades have received the Soldier's Guide from the Band as a token of love, and esteem in which they were held, and then to find, and asking His blessing to follow them.

Captain Spooner then pleaded with the sinner and backslider to give the favour of God, clearly showing God's love to all, through the parable of the prodigal son. After a day we finished with five souls at the Mercy Seat. Mrs. Captain Spooner rendered solos during the day.

THE BEST YET

Substantial Results Attend Harvest Festival Effort.

The Harvest Festival services held at Victoria, B.C., were very interesting and successful. The Senior Band opened the series of meetings that had been arranged to celebrate the event, by giving a splendid musical festival, which was very much enjoyed. The Band played, amongst other items, the "Nuneh" and "Happy Day" marches, and "Harvest Festival" selection. Bandsman J. Rutherford gave a very fine recitation entitled "How Jim Johnson Formed the Band"; Ensign Merritt gave a concertina selection, and Rev. Mr. Cooper, of the Nazareth Church, spoke. The programme was arranged and the Band led by Bandsman George Gadsby.

All the meetings on Sunday were well attended, and great blessings were received. Adjutant Hurst, an old Victoria Officer, was in the city, and he and the Sisters did part of the singing, and assisted at the gatherings, as did Captain Nelson, from Vancouver. The singing of the Adjutant was very much appreciated, and the Sisters did part of the singing, and assisted at the gatherings, as did Captain Nelson, from Vancouver.

On Monday, after a short Harvest Home service, the produce was sold by Mr. Davies, a local auctioneer, who gave his services free, and his display was the best in quality and quantity yet exhibited in the Salvation Army Harvest Festival gatherings, and when sold realized the splendid sum of ninety-two dollars.

On Tuesday night the Young People had their turn and they gave a splendid International Demonstration entitled "Let Us Be Thankful," which was a complete success. Candidate A. MacLaurin had charge of the arrangements, and the Young People Band played the national airs as the different representatives took their places on the platform. The Corps' target of $500 has been reached.

talent they had in his service—insisting, Johnnie's spear, Shamgar's gird, Gideon's lamp, pitcher, and trumpet, and David's sling. It was a powerfully-presented appeal to people to consecrate their ordinary talents to God, and let Him use them as He sees fit. At the close of the address Mrs. Colonel McMillan offered earnest prayer on behalf of the Cadets.

They have seen a vision of the world's need, and of sin's ravages, she said, "give them power to go forth and win souls."

The Commissioner then closed with the Benediction.

COMMISSIONER RICHARDS

At Owen Sound

SOME eighteen months ago the Commissioner paid a visit to the platform with the Commissioner and his Staff were a number of prominent gentlemen of the town, including the Mayor (W. D. Lister), who presided at the gathering, and members of the Town Council, also representatives of the local Ministers.

After Staff-Captain White had offered prayer, the Divisional Commander called upon Adjutant Ash (the Corps Officer) to express a welcome on behalf of the people of the Corps, and in the following words, the Adjutant did his cheerful duty to the satisfaction of all.

"Commissioner, we look upon you as our God-given Leader, and we rejoice at the advances which have been made since your appointment to this Territory. We do sincerely and heartily welcome you into our midst, and the Adjutant did his cheerful duty to the satisfaction of all."

Right heartily the Commissioner was greeted as he stepped to his feet, and then, for considerably over an hour, he interested, thrilled, and delighted his audience with his remarks on Native Work in South Africa, its dangers, and the wonderful results of soul-saving that are going on throughout that continent.

After a selection by the Songsters Mr. McQuaker, the ex-Mayor, said: "I am sure we have all been inspired as we have listened to the Commissioner's story." He then related a little incident in connection with a visit to Camp Borden, remarking how he had been impressed by the men of a certain battalion who were slated for overseas had answered the bugle call for preparation to entrain, and continuing said: "For us all to spring into place at the bugle call which is now sounding and serve with us, we need the greatest King Jesus could pay our good brother who has spoken so well this afternoon."

Rev. Mr. Kelley (Methodist) then addressed the meeting as follows: "I have been deeply interested in what our good brother has said this afternoon, and have been wondering how I shall express my thanks to God for this wonderful Gospel work which is going on under all flags and in every country under the sun. I am deeply appreciative of the words of the Commissioner, and am glad and thankful for the work The Salvation Army is doing, not only in this Territory, but in every part of the world."

On behalf of the gathered congregation, the Mayor said: "We extend to you our sincere gratitude and thanks for your splendid address, and for the great blessing which you have brought to us by your able presence, and a highly-interesting and profitable meeting closed with the singing of the Doxology."

On behalf of the local comrades, Brigadier Rawling, thanked the Commissioner for his address, and for the great blessing which he had brought to us by his able presence, and a highly-interesting and profitable meeting closed with the singing of the Doxology.

Another exceedingly fine crowd gathered in the theatre at night for what was announced as a battle of souls, and battle indeed it was. The soul would reveal Himself to the sinner and saint alike, was the prayer of Brigadier Rawling, after which the Songsters sang and Brigadier Green soloed.

Much faith had been exercised throughout the day, and when the Commissioner arose to address the crowd, he was surrounded by a curtain of real, earnest, believing prayer. After the Commissioner had finished it would have been impossible for any person to have left the building without having a real knowledge of the plan of Salvation, and the means of escape from the woe which is to come.

"Every deed and every act," said our Leader, "is a seed sown either for good or bad, and every deed will act with effect in eternity." Powerfully he exhorted the Commissioner and Brigadier Green, and the prayer meeting, and hearts were rejoiced and labours rewarded in fifteen precious souls seeking pardon at the Mercy Seat.

Throughout the prayer meeting the Soldiers prayed and dealt with the unconverted, while the Commissioner and Brigadier Green, and the prayer meeting, and hearts were rejoiced and labours rewarded in fifteen precious souls seeking pardon at the Mercy Seat.

Throughout the week-end the Commissioner was assisted by Brigadier Rawling and Green, Staff-Captain White, and Adjutant Mrs. Ash (the Commanding Officer), under whose command the Corps (notwithstanding the many testimonies) is going on from victory to victory, with a magnificence of spirit unity being very prevalent.

The Band and Songsters, and the Director, Brother Jones, rendered excellent service throughout the whole campaign.—A. K.

THE CHIEF SECRETARY

IS WELCOMED ENTHUSIASTICALLY AT HALIFAX AND ST. JOHN, N.B.

The initial visit of the Chief Secretary to Halifax was of a most cheerful and blessed nature. He was welcomed wholeheartedly. The No. 1 Citadel was filled with a most enthusiastic crowd of Soldiers and friends who had come along to do honor to the new Executive Head. It was the Colonel's going on his disposal and catching.

We commenced with the Officers of the city, under the convocation of the Divisional Commander (the Christian). A meeting in the upper room, and partaking of a cup of the refreshing beverage and other good things provided for the occasion.

BRITAIN'S FOOD SUPPLY AND THE WAR

Packing Apples in Nova Scotia

THE rapid rise in the prices of nearly all food commodities, brought about by increased taxation, the extra cost of labour and freight, the limited importations of many commodities as a result of the shortage of ships, has called public attention to the effect war is exerting upon food supply in Britain.

Before dealing with the problem it presents itself to the people of this island, it is not without interest to note that it is impossible to deny the great wars of the past brought realizing how they taught nations the need of conserving their food, and the necessity of obtaining the utmost possible from their lands.

The present canning industry, by which all kinds of meat, fish, fruits, and vegetables are preserved in tin bottles and tins at the centres of production, and distributed fresh for human consumption to all parts of the world, arose as a result of the Napoleonic wars. Being unable to obtain sufficient fresh food for his army, through his ports being blockaded by the British Fleet, Napoleon offered a prize of 12,000 francs to any one who could devise a practical method of preserving the valuable, perishable meats that were then being wasted for lack of suitable means of preserving them.

For instance, it has already been announced that both French and German scientists have devised a new synthetic method of producing protein. We have yet to learn exactly what has been achieved here, but it is said that by a combination of yeast, sugar, and nitrogen from the air, the scientific chemist has secured that most important of all the elements that enter into the world's diet—protein. Examples of protein are the whites of eggs, the muscles of meats, the casein of milk, the gluten of flour, and the nitrogenous fats.

Then most agricultural experts are agreed that as a result of the war will come the utilization of other plant products than those now entering into direct use as human food. There are approximately half a million species of plants in the world, and yet only a few thousand of them are used at all for food, while only a few hundred of these are used to any important extent. Some of the plants which we now grow are expensive food-producers, some produce food that is difficult to digest, and some give a small yield per acre.

The fact is, we are constantly developing new foods. It is only a little more than half a century ago that the tomato was regarded as a curiosity. Now it is looked upon as an important article of food. It is less than a century ago that the Lima bean came to us from South America, and the potato was introduced into this country from the known white man went to Peru and Colombia.

What the modern agricultural expert aims to do is not so much to increase the possible acreage under cultivation as to increase the yield per acre and improve the crops. The British farmer obtains a higher yield of wheat and other cereals per acre than do the farmers of Canada or Australia. Russia, for instance, is the greatest grain-exporting country in the world, and with her 288 million acres of excellent wheat lands she could produce all the wheat the world needs. Yet her return is only ten bushels per acre compared with thirty to as high as forty-five bushels by the farmers of this country.

It is the same with fruits and vegetables. Not only is the yield being increased, but the products improved. It is a far cry from the small, hard peach of the olden days to the big, luscious peach of the present; and in a like manner also have the potato and other vegetables been improved.

This increased yield per acre and improved products have been the result of the application of science to farming. Thanks to the introduction of fertilizers, man can not only reap crop after crop from the same plot year after year, but actually increase the fertility of that soil.

The three indispensable articles in the menu of the plant are nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash, and these the fertilizer can now supply. Then synthetic chemistry is delving deeper into the mysteries of Nature's laboratories in the roots and stalks of the plant world, and is gradually coming to the point where it can take the raw materials that the plant itself takes from the soil, and make foods in factories perhaps as well as Nature makes them on the farm.

That something practical will follow, and an impetus be given to food production in this country, as a result of the war, is almost certain. Although from the commencement of the war we have had the command of the seas, our foods have nearly risen in price. The increased cost is due principally to the heavy freights that now prevail, brought about by the scarcity of ships. Naturally, hundreds of vessels ordinarily used for bringing food and other commodities to these shores have been commandeered for war purposes, while ships representing about three million tons carrying capacity have been sunk since the war began. It is the loss of these ships, by commandeering and sinking, that is mainly responsible for the high prices of foods now prevailing.

PROMOTED TO GLORY

Sister A. Lamon, New Aberdeen. After a short illness Sister Mrs. A. Lamon went to be with Jesus. Although never an enrolled Soldier, she called "The Army" her home, and was always pleased to see the Officers and talk of Jesus and His wonderful love. She was converted in Springhill, N.S., in the early days of the Armistice. Among her loved ones mourn her loss are Adjutant Lamon (stationed in the States) and a number of other sons and daughters in different parts of Canada and the United States. We extend to the sorrowing ones our sympathy and prayers.

Ensign Johnston conducted the funeral service at the house on Tuesday, Sept. 12th, and the remains were sent to Springhill for burial.

Brother Arthur Westbury, Truro. After suffering intensely for about sixteen months, Brother Westbury passed to his eternal reward on Thursday morning, Sept. 14th. Our brother, while not a Soldier of recent years, never failed to take an active interest in the Corps, and up to the time of his sickness, when possible, was present at the meetings, and assisted greatly by his singing and music.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Robertson, and was well attended. Much sympathy is felt for Sister Westbury and the family, amongst whom is Candidate Edith Westbury, who intended to enter the Training College this Session.

Brother John Edworthy, Brandon. We received the sad intelligence on Sept. 23rd that our comrade had been killed in action in France while serving with the 16th Canadian Scottish Battalion. His wife, who, with her three little children, followed her husband to England, called to her relatives here the above sad news just on the eve of the Sunday night that he said farewell to us we were holding a memorial service for him.

Brother Edworthy was a thorough Christian and a good Salvation Soldier, and had the respect of comrades and friends in the city. From letters received by us from him he often told of meeting other comrades, and of their holding meetings together and of being made a means of blessing to many. He also told of having at times to stand for God alone, and of how the Lord stood by him and gave him the victory. We rejoiced in this, but rejoice more because he has gained the last great victory.—George Weir, Adjutant.

But the food scientist has shown us how to guard against such a contingency, and we should be wise in noting it. To-day all kinds of perishable foods can be preserved and kept fresh for an indefinite period. And just as soldiers in a fort store provisions to last them over a considerable period, so can a nation in times of peace prepare for emergencies against a possible shortage of food by the establishment of national food depots, where supplies can be kept to be used for the nation's benefit should the need ever arise. The whole question is one that calls for thorough investigation. Something should certainly be done, not only to improve and increase our present food production, but also to see that, should a great emergency arise, we are at least independent for a considerable period of foreign supplies. It is a matter of national importance.—Windsor Magazine.

Brother Arthur Westbury, Truro. After suffering intensely for about sixteen months, Brother Westbury passed to his eternal reward on Thursday morning, Sept. 14th. Our brother, while not a Soldier of recent years, never failed to take an active interest in the Corps, and up to the time of his sickness, when possible, was present at the meetings, and assisted greatly by his singing and music.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Robertson, and was well attended. Much sympathy is felt for Sister Westbury and the family, amongst whom is Candidate Edith Westbury, who intended to enter the Training College this Session.

Brother John Edworthy, Brandon. We received the sad intelligence on Sept. 23rd that our comrade had been killed in action in France while serving with the 16th Canadian Scottish Battalion. His wife, who, with her three little children, followed her husband to England, called to her relatives here the above sad news just on the eve of the Sunday night that he said farewell to us we were holding a memorial service for him.

Brother Edworthy was a thorough Christian and a good Salvation Soldier, and had the respect of comrades and friends in the city. From letters received by us from him he often told of meeting other comrades, and of their holding meetings together and of being made a means of blessing to many. He also told of having at times to stand for God alone, and of how the Lord stood by him and gave him the victory. We rejoiced in this, but rejoice more because he has gained the last great victory.—George Weir, Adjutant.

But the food scientist has shown us how to guard against such a contingency, and we should be wise in noting it. To-day all kinds of perishable foods can be preserved and kept fresh for an indefinite period. And just as soldiers in a fort store provisions to last them over a considerable period, so can a nation in times of peace prepare for emergencies against a possible shortage of food by the establishment of national food depots, where supplies can be kept to be used for the nation's benefit should the need ever arise. NEWS NOTES and COMMENTS

SOLDIERS AND SHEEP

THAT returned wounded soldiers should take up sheep farming as an occupation, is the suggestion of Mr. J. H. Grisdale, Director of the Dominion Government's Experimental Farm system. He points out that Canada is well adapted for sheep-raising, and that it is a profitable employment either on a large or small scale.

"Even though previously entirely innocent of any knowledge in this connection, one really interested can easily and quickly get into the business," he says. "A few months spent where sheep are kept, then a little bit of sheep land, a few nice grade ewes, with a right good ram, and the thing is on its way."

"The initial investment is small, the daily labour is light, and the sum of work for the year much less than many most other lines of business. Besides, the work is of such a character that great physical strength or robust health is not essential to success, though these conditions are usually most necessary to farming."

HEALTHIEST CLOTHING

In a paper read before the Académie de Médecine, Professor Trillat treats of the conditions in which clothing and other objects enter as elements to transport disease germs. He observes that noxious microbes abound in clothes on account of moisture and gaseous emanations coming from the sudorific glands and the lungs. He brings out an interesting fact that various fabrics show different degrees of resistance to the action of microbes. Silk and cotton appear to be less dangerous than woollen garments. Again, as to the means of overcoming the difficulties, he considers that it is very effective to expose garments to the rays of the sun, for this has a remarkable action in destroying the disease germs.

He also mentions the fact that woolen garments, when washed in water, appear to be less dangerous than woollen garments. Again, as to the means of overcoming the difficulties, he considers that it is very effective to expose garments to the rays of the sun, for this has a remarkable action in destroying the disease germs.

DOCTORING TREES

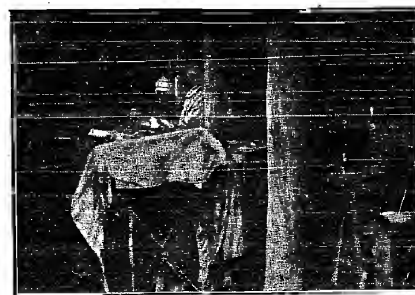

IT has been discovered that by means of a process of bridge-grafting, trees that have been completely girdled by mice or other animals can be kept alive and in good condition.

Diseased parts of tree trunks may be cut away and the wounds bridged over by a number of twigs grafted in above and below, and when the roots of one side are entirely gone, sap can be led to that side of the trunk from the healthy roots on the other side.

WHY COINS WEAR AWAY

NOT abrasion alone, it appears, is the cause of the large loss of metal from coins in circulation. Sir T. K. Rose, in a mint report, points out that chemical action must play a large part, and that the acids of sweat and other greases have a corrosive action on the metal. Copper especially, even if only in small quantity alloyed with gold or silver, is converted into oleate or stearate.

Analyses by Haasen, Senig, of the Utrecht mint, have shown that 36 per cent. of the dirt on a bronze coin was fatty acid compounds of copper, and these compounds are partly rubbed off in handling, causing rapid loss. Gold or silver, though not readily changed into salts, is left in a spongy condition by the removal of copper, thus having greatly increased resistance to abrasion.

HARVEST THAT NEVER ENDS

ALL through the year wheat is being harvested. In January it is being cut in the great fields of the Argentine and New Zealand. In February and March it is cut in the East Indies and Egypt. The wheat fields are harvested in April in Cyprus, Asia Minor, Persia, and China, and in May in China and Japan.

June is the busiest harvest month of the whole year, for then Turkey, Greece, Spain, and South France, as well as most of the South States of America, are all cutting wheat. The more northerly States of America and Canada, as well as Austria, Germany, and parts of Russia, do their wheat harvesting in July. August sees the wheat crop gathered in Great Britain, and September and October for Sweden and Norway. Peru and South Africa are busy harvesting in November and December.

THE CANT OF "CANT"

"I THINK twice before you say 'cant'—and then think again," is a good piece of advice. It can't be done, was the judgment even of men considered wise in their day, when bolder minds proposed to replace horses by steam. "Cant" is giving place to "cant" every day now. The men who have actually lost limbs or suffered other permanent injuries in the great war are being taught to turn "cant" into "cant" by our training and exercises given in our own Military Convalescent Hospitals, and in the similar institutions of Europe. Some of these men might be excused, if any one could be excused, for thinking nothing is left for them but a life of useless idleness. But happily it is not the nature of our soldiers to give in.

There has never been for the nation, and certainly for the comfort and strength which religion alone can give. You soldiers will be facing experiences when all the human emotions will reach a pitch which you have never felt before. Under those conditions you will require more than ever the comfort, sustenance, and the strengthening power of religion."

THE PANAMA CANAL

SEVERAL prominent American engineers fear that there is a practicable method of keeping the Panama Canal free from slides. Government engineers do not share the pessimistic opinions expressed, although some of the frankly say that the shifting mud strata below the canal may prove troublesome for years in the vicinity of Culebra. They believe, however, that a way will be found to prevent slides.

In the meantime financial return from the canal are disappointing. The cost has been greater than estimates, and the receipts have been smaller. It is now admitted that the cost of the canal, including construction, fortification, slides, etc., will be $450,000,000, exclusive of the maintenance of troops in the canal zone.

FIVE-MILE BRIDGE

SAN FRANCISCO is planning a bridge the greatest bridge in the world. It is to connect Oxnard and its contiguous district with San Francisco, and is to relieve five ferry systems of passenger and vehicle traffic.

The proposed bridge will cost $22,000,000 and will be five and a half miles long. It will be one of the heaviest bridges ever built, carrying three roadways and four railway tracks.

Its main portion is to be made of sixteen spans each 250 feet long. Near the San Francisco shore the bridge will be two long and high spans under which the ships will pass.

SCOTCH FRUIT CROP

THE fruit crop, which consists chiefly of raspberries, in Scotland has been fair, but the difficulty has been the selling of the crop, because in many cases the price offered has been high, but in the obtaining of labour to gather the crop. A large number of teachers, students, and others who had volunteered as pickers have returned their homes, in view of the reopening of the schools. The scarcity of labour has affected the demand considerably.

SOUL-WINNER'S JOY

"THE Divinest and most joyous of all satisfaction is in life with the discovery that a soul has been brought to Christ by one's personal instrumentality," wrote Dr. Wardlaw Thompson, just called glory from the foreign secretary of the London Missionary Society.

A NOVEL PLEA

ACHRISTIAN Japanese lawyer in declining a man on trial for murder, insisted that he should be acquitted, as he had been converted to Christianity before he committed the crime. He was no longer the old man who committed the crime. The law then explained to the court that Christ gives victory over sin.

THEY BEAT THE LARK

RECENT investigations tend to show that the lark is not so tired by the repetition of being earlier than the sun, as was long after chaffinches, finches, and a number of other birds have been and about for some time.

CHAPTER VIII.

TOM AS A CAMEL DRIVER

TOM was among those who had to protect the cattle. The latter were massed together and brought from Lake Hope. All in charge of them were mounted on good horses and fully armed with a revolver and rifle between two, and any amount of ammunition.

They got half-way to Perregundy, and were going to camp at some wells which were nearly dry, the water having soaked into the surrounding earth. The black boys were asked if there were any signs of borgeines about, but apparently there were none. They were in the habit of putting it to the vote, at night, as to whether or not they could allow one or two to watch while the others slept. The black boys to whom they had already spoken on the matter made them feel that there was no need for a watch, and it was ultimately decided that they should all go to sleep and get away early in the morning. There were thirteen men lying asleep in the camp. The firearms had first to be examined before they could be taken. There was no covering, save blankets and horse rug.

Archie McKinnon and Billy Rook are mates. Archie was a fine, tall, Scotchman; Rook a splendid seaman, Archie, feeling poorly towards morning, arose, and went out of the camp a little way. When he returned Billy was awake. Archie told him that he could hear the horses galloping about, and some of them had broken their hobble. Billy, as a real bushman, who thoroughly understood things. In those days we had no hobble of cowhide, but with knots instead of buckles. One end of the strap was twisted and passed through a hole in the hind end. The horse could not break until they were worn out. Billy did not understand this breaking of the hobbles, and went outside to discover what was the matter.

"I am not satisfied," said he, after fruitless search. "What do you think? What's the matter? Look at the watch!" Archie read off the three sentences with a pause between each. "Ten! He daylight in with a quarter of an hour," replied Billy; adding, "If there are any blacks about, I'll be there in five minutes." Billy, who had been sitting at the camp, suddenly the pecks rushed the camp. Billy immediately got to work with his rifle by the time he had accounted for one or two of them, Archie McKinnon had fired two shots from his revolver. All the men in camp were awakened by those first shots, and soon got busy; but in a short time there was no black to be seen. Billy had all slipped away.

It was afterwards discovered that the blacks had arranged to come on each side of the camp, in two files. The one party came, but the others did not appear at all. When they heard the shots, there must have been thirty or forty on each side. Instead of that, when the one found that the other was out, they cleared out, too. These pecks do not throw spears. They are a long, heavy spear, which they throw into anyone who is down. They had thrust it into seven or eight of Tom's party.

It was Providential care that saved the second mob from attacking them and the wackiness of Archie McKinnon and Billy Rook had been a means in God's hands of delivering them from a sudden and terrible death. Our hero came through with nothing worse than a scratch on his arm.

Three Hundred Miles for a Doctor

When things were squared up a little, and daylight came, a few who were able to ride went round to the black boys who were watching outside. These were more frightened than the white members of the party. Tom had to go to the police camp to report the occurrence, and get a doctor, which meant a 300-mile journey back to Lake Hope, and from there it would be necessary to keep going if there were nobody else to send on.

He journeyed to Blackwater—over 200 miles—before he got a spell. The nearest police station was at Fickling, but only two policemen were there. Tom was obliged to go where he could get relief—where the doctor and the black protector lived. He pushed on to Blenheim, and was enabled to return within four or five days with the inspector, troopers, and black protector. The woman of the house drew attention, but one man died.

"Tom was definitely installed as camel driver"

This incident showed that the blacks would do almost anything to keep the cattle from straying at Perregundy. When it was all over, four good men were left in the hut there while the rest went back to Lake Hope—until things were straightened up.

The Monotonous North

These experiences helped to sicken Tom to the far north. There were no pubs, no white companies, no churches, no Christians—only blacks—and one had always to be fighting with the latter, in self-defence. If they went over to the Moravian mission station—which was about one hundred and fifty miles away—they received no satisfaction. The Moravians, doubtless, thought they were doing good. Some of Tom's party would occasionally go over to the station to see them, and hear the testimonies of some of the blacks who professed conversion. Some would actually be preaching, and yet, within a fortnight, would return to their former wicked pursuits—killing cattle, etc.

Wary of all this sort of thing, Tom went back among the sheep to Belana, Elder's big station. A public house was there at the time of our hero's arrival, and shearing was in progress. This station was a base of operations for all the north, the camels being there, too. It was impossible to go farther north with the camels, and after a while the white men were employed to look after them instead of Afghans. The latter, if they were not paid in gold (two sovereigns per month) directly their money was paid, would not do another stroke till it was forthcoming.

"Do you think any of you could learn to drive the camels," asked the boss of Tom and a few of the other white men about the farm.

Tom replied that he would, although he did not much like the "smell of them." "If I could only get four or five to start, I would give good pay—I would pay you so much a ton per mile," said one of the men.

Said our hero, in his description of the methods of managing these as a camel driver, and a full employment, was able, as much as six pounds a week. Afghans were sent back to their five country. Tom accepted the offer, and was able to give his thirty shillings and "tucker" each week. They took good loads of managing, sometimes five hundred weight per camel. There was a way of plenty of loading material such as timber, fencing wire, etc. Tom went up to the Cooper Station with rations, and enlisted two or three men to accompany him from there, and continued to make good wages for himself and his men, fully satisfying his employer. The boss was very pleased that the whites had successfully tackled the camels, and could therefore take the places of the Afghans.

THE CHIEF SECRETARY

(Continued from Page 11) years ago, and the leadings of God Spirit in his experience, introducing occasional glimpses of humour into his address, which captivated his hearers, and led them to a beautiful state of spiritual feeling. The congregation stood to their feet and entered into a keenly-felt consecration. The meeting was exceedingly free, and pulsated with genuine Salvation glow and warmth from start to finish. His will be a welcome return at an early date.

ST. JOHN

Sunday, Oct. 1st, was a red-letter day in Salvation Army circles at St. John. At No. 1, Corps, in the afternoon the Life-Saving Scouts' Band and Life-Saving Guards turned out in full strength, all fully uniformed, and marched to King Square. A good crowd was drawn by the strains of the Band, and the marching and wheeling of the Guards. Ensign Nest took charge of the meeting, which was thoroughly appreciated.

On our return to the Citadel's very nice crowd awaited us. The Scouts and Guards commanded the platform, the front row of chairs being occupied by Officers. Major Barr opened the meeting. After brief addresses by Adjutant White (the newly-appointed Officer of the North Metropole) and Adjutant Clarke (Evangelical Rescue and Maternity Home), the Life-Saving Guards, under Scout Leader Lane, sang, "Only an Armour-Bearer." Then Major Barr introduced Colonel McMillan.

The audience and Soldiers gave him a great welcome, which made him feel at home right away, and he gave us a most interesting talk to us about Australia.

At night we had a great Salvation meeting. The Citadel was packed! It was a very interesting evening. Shepherd, furnished the instrumental music. Mrs. Major Barr asked the Divine Blessing and Major Jennings gave a most interesting and helpful address. The Salvation Army Colored right down to the subject nearest his heart, the Salvation of the women.

Rapt attention was given to the Colonel by the large concourse of people, and it will be long before the hours of the day were seen at the Mercy Seat, where several came forward seeking pardon.

Our Officers, Adjutant and Mrs. Green, worked very hard to make this visit a successful one. Here is some more good news about St. John. At the Harvest Festival, the new music was given, total collected, $320; champion collector, St. John Addie McDermott, $110; Mrs. Adjutant Green, $78; all other collectors did well, too.—T. J. J.

MISSION SERVICE IN PETROGRAD

For I have met the people I been praying to meet. When I was on my way to find the Salvation Army.

Together with her Officer husband and her little children she had the long journey from Brazietrograd, stage by stage, and she had reached the capital of Russia, and her husband and children were at the station. When she told the "Salvationists" given her a copy of "Viestnik" and told her, when she reached her destination, to make her the address given on the

It was soon discovered that at the stopping places, such as Murov and Hull and Stockholm, she had been able to help and succor the little party, and, encouraged by her past experience, and acting on the advice of a Salvationist, she was seeking out the Army in Petrograd, feeling sure that once she came under its care she would find a way out of all her troubles.

The Adjutant arranged with the Officers about the care of the man and his wife and family. He was a lawyer. His easy-going ways and kind heart had, so it proved, proved his undoing from a business standpoint. All their furniture was sold, and when he fell ill, he was barely enough left to pay the tickets, and while the Army helped them they might have been able to save the man's life, and after two months of suffering, mitigated by the tender solicitude of his wife and our comrades, gone, and he was left for his last-like efforts, he passed away.

Officers Conduct Funeral The last efforts were performed by the Slum Officers, who, according to custom, sat with the body until it was carried to the cemetery. The very man in which the man was buried was obtained by our Slum workers, and when this solitary stranger was laid in his last resting-place he was buried by four of our comrades.

The husband gone, there was no desire on the part of the wife to remain in Petrograd. So it was arranged for her to return to her relations in Siberia, where, together with her children, she is now at peace. In a recent communication she says that she has now obtained a post of school teacher, and that the children are well and still remember the Salvation Army songs they were taught in Petrograd, and often, when not singing, they spend their time repeating the stories in the "Viestnik" assembly, which in more ways than one has proved a Salvation messenger to them.

THE SOMME FRONT

To leave the nice place I had got up to well, but of course, I did not take it with me there. The thing else to be done. The duty of securing as good a night's sleep as I could get. made the journey in easy stages, stopping every half-hour and for a few minutes' rest. As we found ourselves on a little bank just outside a little town, we were our sandwiches and were appetite. I had men-son, and commented briefly on the same. The Commissioner's subject was "Experiences of Salvation Army Warfare in Many Lands." For over an hour he kept his audience deeply interested, making reference to The Army's work in Sweden, Denmark, Norway, Finland, United States, India, and Canada.

The Rev. C. M. Wright moved a vote of thanks to the Commissioner at the conclusion of his lecture, Brigadier McLean publicly thanked the Chairman on behalf of those present for presiding on the occasion.

We are still doing our utmost to extend the Kingdom of God in Cranbrook, B.C. On Sept. 28th we were favoured with a visit from Commissioner and Mrs. Sowton and Brigadier McLean (our Divisional Commander). Ensign Kerr (Financial Collector for the British Columbia Division), and at one time an Officer of the Cranbrook Corps, was also present.

While the hour for the service to commence had arrived an encouraging crowd had assembled in the Methodist Church, kindly loaned for the occasion by our kind friend, the Rev. Keyworth. "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name" was the opening song, after which the Rev. Keyworth asked God's blessing on the service.

The customary introductory remarks having been made by Brigadier McLean—who, by the way, is highly esteemed by the people of Cranbrook—Mrs. Keyworth sang an appropriate solo entitled "The Sinner and the Song." The singing was of such character that the hearts of all present were touched.

Mrs. Commissioner Sowton read from the Word of God, at the conclusion of which, Professor Kidd, organist of the Methodist Church, favoured those present with an organ recital.

To the delight of the audience, Commissioner and Mrs. Sowton sang some Indian choruses. The Commissioner requested the people to try and sing them, which they endeavoured to do with a hearty good-will.

The Commissioner's lecture on India was most interesting, and gave a descriptive account of the life, manner, and customs of its people.

At any rate, whatever the future may hold they face it like men with courage and a wonderful cheerfulness. At one A.M. we started out again, after an hour and a half we boarded the train, and in a few hours, which took us some ten miles, when we had another two hours' walk before we reached the town of Somers.

We pushed on again after lunch, where, at three thirty p.m., when our train had arrived, we halted until one the next morning at a rest camp. As we had no beds, only the ground to lie on, we did not get much sleep. We gathered a lot of wood and built a huge bonfire, around which the most of the men gathered and sang and recited and told interesting stories until it was time to fall in again.

One could notice how much more heart the boys put into the songs that spoke of home and peace. Especially when they sang "Keep the Home Fires Burning" and "Tenting To-night on the Old Camp Ground." After singing these they were all silent for a time, communing with their own thoughts, and no doubt picturing the welcome that awaited them if they were fortunate enough to return. God grant that they may and that at a not-very-distant date.

people. He also touched upon their many and various religions. One felt, as they listened to the Commissioner, how limited their knowledge of that vast country.

At the conclusion, Mr. White, a prominent citizen, rose, and, in a few, well-chosen words, thanked the Commissioner, and proposed a vote of thanks, which was promptly seconded by the Rev. Keyworth, who remarked that his knowledge of India had been greatly increased by being privileged to be present. The Reverend gentleman undoubtedly voiced the sentiments of the audience, for, at the close of the service, a number came forward and personally thanked the Commissioner.

Fernie was the next Corps in British Columbia to be visited, and a fine crowd gathered to hear the Commissioner's lecture. The Chairman for the evening, Dr. Bonnell of Fernie, was introduced by the Brigadier. The Doctor, for some considerable time, has been engaged in military service, made reference to the Salvation Army's work among the troops. What he had seen convinced him that The Army had the interests of the men at heart.

The Rev. Mr. Perley, who, at one time, was a Missionary in China, moved a vote of thanks and spoke very highly of The Army's Missionary efforts. "Those privileged to be present were now far better informed regarding far-off India," and he was confident that the Commissioner's lecture had aroused in their hearts and minds a practical sympathy with The Army's endeavours to extend the Gospel among its people.

Commissioner and Mrs. Sowton were the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Carson, who had been of the full their kind hospitality. On Saturday Doctors Bonnell and Carson kindly escorted our Leaders through the Fernie Hospital, and both Doctors spoke on the Medical Staff of the Institution. The visit of our Commissioners will be long remembered, and their next will be looked forward to with pleasure.

Captain Cox and his assistant, Lieutenant Fox, are to be congratulated on the arrangements made by them for the visit of Canada West's Leaders.

the field for the officers and barge in the village for the men. We managed to dig up a few blankets that had been left by the previous occupants and rolled up in these we laid down on the board floor and had a good sleep. Two days later we were issued with tents, and as it looked as if we were to be located for a time, I hustled around and secured a tent and began to fix it up, so that I could open a Rest. I was just getting things in shape when word came that we would move to-day, and here we are, after two hours and a half tramp, bivouacked out in the open field, shifting for ourselves the best we can, and wondering what will happen next.

I am getting an old dogout fixed up and if we are here for a few days I will use it to supply tea and biscuits to the men. If we are fixed up permanently I will try and get a marriage and fix up a good place for the men. We arrived here just before lunch, and had only been here for about an hour when Fritz began to send over some high explosives. We had half a mile from us in the valley. They dropped near some horse lines, and it did not take long for them to get the horses out of the road.

Our artillery is busy this afternoon retaliating for the morning's bombardment. They have also been sending over smoke bombs to get the range for their guns, but as these have fallen considerably short of our camp, we feel quite secure. However, we have to take our chances the same as the rest.

Just before leaving the Salient I met our Australian Chaplain, Captain McKenzie, in Ypres. In company with another officer I had just returned from visiting a cemetery about two miles beyond there and met him on the way back. He is looking well and has had a wonderful experience, and is well liked by the men and officers.

We had rather a close shave on that trip. On our way back, as we were crossing the fields, just before we reached Ypres, a large shell came whistling in, and landed within a few yards of us. We threw ourselves on the ground and waited for the worst, but fortunately for us it proved to be a "dud" and failed to explode. We went on our way with thankful hearts for our escape.

ARMY SONGS

SALVATION FOR ALL

Tunes—Monmouth, 9; Ernan, 6;
Song Book, 43.
The love of Christ doth me constrain
To seek the wandering souls of men,
With cries, entreaties, tears, to save;
To snatch them from the gaping grave.

For this let men revile my name:
No cross I shun; I fear no shame;
All hail reproach, and welcome pain,
Only Thy terrors, Lord, restrain.

To Thee I all my powers present,
That for Thy truth they may be spent;
Fulfill Thy sovereign counsel, Lord,
Thy will be done, Thy name adored.

ON THE CROSS

Tunes—Behold the Lamb, 122; Better world, 123; Song Book, 13.
Behold! behold the Lamb of God,
On the Cross!
For us He shed His precious blood,
On the Cross!
Oh, hear His all-important cry,
"Why perish! Blood-bought sinner,
Draw near and see your Saviour die,
On the Cross!"

Behold His arms extended wide,
Behold His bleeding hands and side;
The sun withholds his rays of light,
The heavens are clothed in shades of night.
While Jesus does with devils fight.

Come, sinners, see Him lifted up,
He drinks for you the bitter cup;
The rocks do rend, the mountains quake,
While Jesus doth Salvation make.
While Jesus suffers for our sake.

THE CANADA WEST TRAINING SCHOOL

THE NEW CADETS—LIEUT. COL. TURNER AND TRAINING STAFF IN THE GROUNDS OF THE WINNIPEG TRAINING SCHOOL

DURING THE PAST MONTHS (writes our Western Correspondent) the newly-formed Territory of Canada West has certainly been making history, and October 5th marked another epoch in its annals. The event, we think we can safely say, the historic event, which took place on the date mentioned, was the opening in Winnipeg a School for the training of young men and women for Officership. It will be remembered that Canada West's first Contingent of Cadets twenty or so in number—had of necessity to be trained in The Salvation Army College at Toronto. These Cadets were duly commissioned last May and are now Officers stationed at different points throughout Western Canada and the Pacific Coast.

One of Commissioner Sowton's chief aspirations for Canada West was found a School where Candidates for Officership could be trained within borders. A few months after the Territory was formed an ideal Training College site was secured, situated in the west end of the city. It is only a question of time when a permanent building will be erected. The Commissioner decided that it would not be advantageous to wait all conditions were ripe for the building of a College, and decided that Balmoral Domestic Lodge, situated on Balmoral Street, Winnipeg, 44, with some slight alterations, meet the immediate needs. For the few weeks the Institution referred to has been in the hands of renovators, in order that all might be in readiness for the reception of the course of a few weeks. Canada West is certainly to be congratulated. The Balmoral Lodge lends itself admirably to the needs of both the Staff and the young people, whose home it will be for the next few months.

On Friday, October 6th, Lieut. Colonel and Mrs. Turner (the Territorial Secretaries) took tea with the Cadets, and welcomed them to the City of Winnipeg. What a joyful gathering it was! The fresh, young faces of the Cadets beamed with happiness. Every one of them appeared to be quite at home as they sat around the tea-tables.

Brigadier and Mrs. Taylor, Major Coombs, and Ensign Carter were present. The Manitoba Division has sent into Training sixteen Cadets, which is very commendable indeed. Saskatchewan (the baby Division) sent two, Alberta and British Columbia two and three, respectively.

The Territorial Secretary informed those present that the object of the gathering was to give the Cadets an informal welcome and to introduce them and the Training Staff—Brigadier and Mrs. Phillips and Ensign F. Peacock. Before proceeding, however, he proposed that the Cadets introduce themselves, which they gladly did. "I am Cadet Otterkill, from Fort Frances," said one. "I am Cadet McLaurin, from Victoria, B.C.," said another; and so on, till very soon every one felt they were well acquainted with one another. Mrs. Sharrocks, who has charge of the culinary operations, was given a hearty welcome. It seemed evident that the Cadets desired to keep on the right side of this member of the Staff.

Ensign Peacock, who has recently recovered from a long and trying illness, was the first called on to speak, and expressed her gratitude to God and The Army for the privilege of being appointed to the Training Staff.

Twenty-three Cadets have entered for this first Session—seventeen women and six young men; two more are expected to enter in the
